Statement from President William E. Sims

The beginning of a new school year is always an exciting time. This new beginning is an opportunity for you to train your minds, learn new things, to appreciate the very special tradition and culture of Langston University. Langston University has a long history of educating students to meet the needs of the State and the Nation. We hope that you gain new insights as to yourselves and to your places in the society that is becoming more complex everyday. Use Langston University to find your niche to expand your knowledge to dedicate your efforts to worthwhile ventures. The time for serious work started August 27 with the beginning of classes.

This year will see many changes on our campus--the faculty, student body, curriculum and physical plant will undergo change. The faculty will have the highest percentage of doctorates in the Institution's seventy-seven year history. The Freshman Class is one of the brightest that ever came here. The curriculum will be expanded to include three new degree programs, and the physical plant will change significantly before the end of the academic year.

Let us unite for a single purpose to make Langston University a better place for better students, for in the final analysis that is what education is all about.
